

DAILY PLANET

ALL THE NEWS THAT FITS

Tuesday, May 1

2001

Cloud cover at Kennedy forces Endeavour to land in California

Cloud cover, showers and gusty winds at Kennedy Space Center, Fla., forecast for today and the remainder of the week, prompted controllers to switch Endeavour's landing site to Edwards Air Force Base, Calif. Two opportunities exist — one at 11:11 a.m. CDT and a second at 12:47 p.m. CDT. Weather at Edwards is ideal.

Marshall Association lunch
11:30 a.m., Tuesday,
Bldg. 4203 cafeteria

Volunteers needed
for Public Service
Recognition Week
May 10. Send an e-mail to Rosa Kilpatrick

NASA associate administrator for procurement visits Thurs.

An open forum with Tom Luedtke, NASA's associate administrator for procurement, will be from 9-11 a.m. Thursday in Morris Auditorium. The forum is being held to solicit questions, views and opinions of interested persons or firms concerning NASA's procurement policies, practices and initiatives.

Society for Engineering Management to meet May 15

The American Society for Engineering Management will meet at 11:30 a.m., May 15 in the Regimental Room of the Redstone Arsenal Officers' and Civilians' Club. Alex Hardy, director of Cummings Research Park, will speak. A fee of $2 per person is due at the door. To attend, call Pam Takada at 544-3645 or send an e-mail to: pam.takada@msfc.nasa.gov

Purchase Public Service Week
luncheon tickets
from admin officers
through Friday